That is the beauty of art and the challenge to our playwrights. Each year we take three works of art and ask writers to write a play as they are moved or inspired by the artwork. We blind-read the submissions, select the best and produce them. The art is exhibited, we perform the play and ask the audience for feedback.

Here are some of my favorite plays and playwrights (and social-media-postable write-ups): The Weir is my absolute favorite play. I love Conor McPherson. Other awe-inspiring plays of his that I especially love are The Seafarer, Shining City, and The Night Alive, but I always, always return to The Weir. I read it probably once a year and my heart swells every time.
